

LIGHTNING BOLT HITS MAN

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

A HOPE CITIZEN, O. A. Graves, is to manage Governor Futrell's campaign for re-election. Hempstead county gave Chancellor Futrell 76 per cent of the combined vote two years ago—and as governor, seeking his second term, the electorate should do as well by him again this year.

FERA Probe Fails to Uncover Facts of Abusive Nature

Mississippi County Being Combed, However, by Investigators

COMPLAINTS MADE

Two Federal Men Reveal That There Actually Is an Investigation

LITTLE ROCK—Two officials of the FERA, engaged in an investigation in Mississippi county were the first of the farm relief colonies planned for Arkansas, is being established, were quoted in a dispatch from Blytheville Friday as saying they had found nothing to substantiate complaints that were responsible for their being sent into the state.

The officials were George Babcock, FERA regional engineer, who is inspecting the work on the new relief colony site, and Nels Anderson of the FERA Washington staff.

While W. R. Dyess, state director of the FERA in a statement published Friday said that he knew of no investigation, various officials of the organization talked more or less freely "off the record" about the inquiry which has been under way here and in Mississippi county.

Field Representative Here

Winthrop Lane, field representative of the FERA, who has been in Arkansas about two weeks assisting in making a change in the social service department, has been questioning various persons interested in the work of the FERA regarding Mr. Dyess' appointments and methods.

It was denied at the state FERA headquarters Friday that Mrs. Gertrude S. Gates, who recently was transferred from her position as director of social work here, had disapproved some of the policies and administrative acts of Mr. Dyess and had reported her ideas to Washington. However, Mr. Dyess said he had had no official notice of such a report.

Probe at Blytheville

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark.—An investigation of complaints from Mississippi county concerning the FERA relief program is being made here and at Osceola by George Babcock, FERA regional engineer and Nels Anderson, of the FERA Washington staff.

Public dissatisfaction over the relief program was given by the officials as the reason for their visit. Neither would they make any comment on the investigation but indicated that thus far they had found untrue stories of abuse of the relief program for political purposes and of the misuse or illegal conversion of government funds and property.

General Strike on Pacific Threatens

West Coast Unions May Walk Out to Help Longshoremen

SAN FRANCISCO.—(AP)—In a martial atmosphere heavy with the promise of cold steel and hot lead for the violent, steps were taken here Friday toward a general strike in protest against the shooting down of waterfront pickets and the use of the National Guard, and the idea spread quickly to Portland, Ore.

Only a few steps removed from a three-mile line of National Guard machine guns and bayonet-tipped rifles commanding police on the strike-torn waterfront, a call for a general strike was formulated by a joint committee of 50 representing the union ranks in the long maritime walkout.

John O'Connell, president of the San Francisco Central Labor Council, said the agents of 120 unions with a membership of 45,000 were meeting to discuss the advisability of a complete walkout. A two-thirds vote was necessary to carry the question.

Representatives of 50 unions in Portland approved a resolution calling upon a committee to meet not later than Monday to formulate plans for a general strike in sympathy with the walkout of 27,000 coast longshoremen and marine workers.

The Portland move for a general strike coincides, as in San Francisco, followed the hauling of gas bombs into picket ranks Friday night as strikers sought to prevent the non-union

Mr. Graves boils the situation down to this:

"Those who know the governor have absolute confidence in his courage and integrity—and as for those who don't know, we promise them a clean campaign."

This newspaper takes reasonable pride in reminding its readers that we were among the first to declare for Futrell early in 1932 when candidates were numerous and there was no prospect of a run-off primary to clear up the confusion among the voters.

It was the disinterested support which the newspapers gave to Judge Futrell, often at a sacrifice of potential political advertising, that drew the factional lines and developed the campaign issues which settled the voters' minds.

It was a "hunch" that threw newspaper support to Futrell in 1932. An earlier chancellor, John E. Martin, had established the Arkansas highway program—and it was a lucky guess that another chancellor, E. Marion Futrell, would rescue the program and the state's credit from the bankruptcy into which reckless politicians had plunged it.

The governor has come as close to fulfilling his campaign promises as any office-holder within this state's memory. There have been minor conflicts and not all of his subordinates have measured up to expectations—but the Futrell record on the whole demonstrates that there is in Arkansas today a man old-fashioned enough to still believe that a public office is a public trust.

X X X
When the cities along highway No. 4 sent delegates to Camden last Tuesday for a mass meeting to petition the State Highway Department to complete the 11-mile gap in lower Nevada county between Rosston and the Ouachita line, Prescott had five men present to argue that a better route for hard-surfacing would be No. 24, running from Nashville to McCaskill, Blevins, Prescott and Camden.

The Prescott Daily News says editorially:

They sought to have No. 24 adopted from Camden to Lockesburg for hard-surfacing, and the completion of No. 4 from Camden to Hope as a second-class road. The chair declined to entertain the motion on the ground that the meeting was strictly in the interest of highway No. 4.

We say in all sincerity that at this particular moment the citizens of Prescott are a good deal more community-minded about highways than Hope is.

Prescott beat Hope fairly and squarely on the matter of getting a bridge across the Little Missouri river last summer. Hope couldn't even raise a quorum for a meeting on the question—and Prescott copped the bridge, which, we understand, is now approaching completion on a direct line between Prescott and Delight.

X X X
But on this argument over highways No. 4 and No. 24 it might be better policy to forget hard-surfacing until we first have a thorough gravel road.

What the cities along No. 4 want first is a completed gravel road on that 11-mile missing link in Prescott's own county. No. 4 isn't a pleasant topic in Prescott, since the road favors Hope against Prescott. But we would remind Prescott that about three years ago Hope helped put through No. 24 from Blevins to Nashville, giving Prescott access to the northern end of the county on a road

O. A. Graves to Manage Futrell Race

Hope Attorney to Handle Governor's Second Term Bid

Headquarters Established in New Capital Hotel at Little Rock

CITES GOOD RECORD

Graves Trusts to South-west Arkansas to Repeat 1932 Record Vote

O. A. Graves, Hope attorney, will manage Governor Futrell's campaign for re-election, it was announced Friday night from Little Rock.

Futrell headquarters are to be maintained at the New Capital hotel, Little Rock, whence Mr. Graves will move shortly to assume active charge of the governor's campaign.

Tribute From Futrell

Interviewed at Little Rock Mr. Futrell said a large amount of mail coming to the governor's office is of a political nature, and that under the law political activities cannot be engaged in at the capital building.

"This is as it should be," Governor Futrell said, "and in order to abide by the spirit as well as the letter of the law, my friends, acting in my behalf, have rented rooms at the New Capital hotel, where matters connected with my candidacy for re-election will receive attention."

He paid high tribute to Mr. Graves as a man of unimpeachable character, a gentleman of the very highest order, and my sincere personal friend."

Graves' Statement

In Hope Saturday, Mr. Graves made the following statement:

"The most important public duty now facing the people of Arkansas is re-election of Governor Futrell. Eighteen months ago, when he went into office, the state was bankrupt, its credit gone, its warrants begging, its bonds in disrepute, and its creditors frantic.

"Today warrants are being paid in cash at 100 cents on the dollar, there is a substantial balance to the credit of general revenue, a workable bond refunding bill has been passed, and every department of government over which the chief executive exercises control is functioning quietly, efficiently and economically. In 1933, for the first time in years, the penitentiary showed a profit. During the fiscal year just closed, the State hospital operated at a saving of more than $100,000 over the two previous years. The cost of government has been cut more than 50 per cent.

"There have been no scandals, no suggestions of dishonesty, no political manipulations, such as those which so frequently embarrass governors. Being primarily interested in the state's economical administration and the efficiency of its institutions, it is but natural that I should desire Governor Futrell's re-election.

"I would feel regret in duty if I should neglect to contribute my time, influence and energy in aiding to consummate that which is best for all of us. I am not a candidate nor an applicant for any office.

"I haven't been a candidate nor an applicant for any office since I was prosecuting attorney for the Eighth district about 25 years ago, except that I was a member of the war-time constitutional convention.

Futrell Stronghold

"Hempstead county and southwest Arkansas had a large part in the election of Governor Futrell two years ago. In Hempstead county he received more than 75 per cent of all the votes cast. From the record he has made I am confident his vote in Hempstead and southwest Arkansas will exceed that of two years ago.

"I have absolute confidence in the governor's integrity. He is a faithful public servant and one intimately acquainted with him doubts his sincerity of purpose.

"I am serving without compensation and I hope that the governor's friends in this county and throughout the state will join in an roll up for the governor the largest vote ever given a candidate having an opponent."

Shank to Be Put to Death on 27th

Rival Gin Owner Quizzed in Blaze

W. C. Parker, of Banks, Questioned by State Fire Marshal Gentry

What Charles Crosnoe termed would "make an interesting book" will be revealed early next week, probably Monday, Crosnoe told The Star Saturday.

He said he was preparing a statement, calling it a "stem twister" that would "open the eyes of a lot of people around here."

Meanwhile the State Fire Marshal's office at Little Rock continued an investigation into the burning of a gin at Banks, Ark., and other alleged incendiary fires.

The Star, in a long-distance telephone message with State Fire Marshal U. A. Gentry, learned Saturday that W. C. Parker, of Banks, was being questioned in connection with the cotton gin blaze there.

Parker was a competitor of the owner of the burned gin in which Crosnoe, Jesse Hulston, Thomas Crawford and a negro are held under bond.

Parker, it was said by Mr. Gentry, denied any knowledge of circumstances leading up to the firing of the gin. He declared that he had done nothing wrong.

Mr. Gentry told The Star that several other persons were wanted, but he would reveal no names until more information is obtained.

He said that confessions made by Crosnoe and Robert Perry Boyd had implicated several whose names are withheld until other matters are cleared up.

Industrial Rule Will Succeed NRA

Self-Government to Be Attended by U. S. Supervision of Price Hikes

NEW YORK.—(AP)—The Roosevelt administration, it was reported Friday night by an authoritative source, is working on a plan to supplant the NRA with a strictly-regulated self-government for industry.

Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, initiated such steps several weeks ago in a preliminary set-up given to President Roosevelt for study. Revisions were suggested, "these are being made now for final approval of the president. The source of the information is unusually close to the administration. The authority said the plan is almost certain to be effected.

As outlined, the program provides for continuance of the codes as a permanent feature of industrial life. Under these codes, pursuant to rules of conduct laid down by the federal government and supervised closely, industry would be given the chance to govern itself.

Johnson, it was said had paid particular attention to the correction of monopolistic tendencies charged up to the NRA.

"The federal government," said the Associated Press informant, "would watch closely to prevent and rise in prices it deemed unjustified. If the Sherman anti-trust act continues under suspension, its provisions would probably be guarded by a licensing

6 Slain as Dutch Riot to Protest Dole's Reduction

STORM BARRICADES

Police and Soldiers Put Down New Unemployment Demonstration

AMSTERDAM, Holland.—(AP)—Rioting which was thought to have been checked with the arrival of additional soldiers and police, broke out anew late Saturday resulting in two more deaths, bringing the total to six for the day.

An undetermined number of persons were wounded.

Authorities said the situation was grave. Four persons were killed Saturday morning when police and troops cleared the disturbed areas, using tanks to flatten the barricades.

The rioters, mostly unemployed, were incensed at a reduction in the city's dole payments.

Anti Poll Tax Bill May Be Rejected

Amendment Proposal Declared to Have Insufficient Signatures

BULLETIN

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Attorney General Hal Norwood held Saturday that the law requires the signatures of 10 per cent of the qualified electors in the last general election to initiate a constitutional amendment, sustaining the position of Assistant Secretary of State Higgins in declining to accept initiative petitions bearing fewer than the required number of signatures.

LITTLE ROCK.—Jim B. Higgins, deputy secretary of state, tentatively declined Friday to accept petitions for a proposed initiative constitutional amendment to abolish the poll tax as a qualification for voting, and sent a letter to Attorney General Hal L. Norwood asking if the secretary of state should accept initiative petitions bearing fewer than the required number of signatures.

Thomasesberry Gray, of Batesville, sponsor of the proposed amendment, filed petitions bearing approximately 1,300 names and contended that he had the right to "amend" the petitions within 30 days by filing the remainder of the required 22,188 names.

Members of the attorney general's staff said an opinion would be prepared today, holding that the secretary of state is without authority to accept petitions unless they bear the specified number of signatures. They said unofficially that the provision of the initiative and referendum amendment giving sponsors 30 days for "correction or amendment" after they are notified by the secretary of state that the petitions are insufficient, has reference to errors or minor defects in the language or form of the petition and does not mean that additional names may be filed, is the required number was not obtained within the time specified.

Mr. Gray said he would take the question to the courts, if the secretary of state declines to accept the partial filing. He said he believes a sufficient number of signatures has been obtained but that persons in various counties in charge of circulating the petitions failed to return them in time to be filed. The time for filing such petitions expired at 12 Thursday night, Mr. Higgins said.

It was reported that sponsors of the proposed amendment to establish a uniform system of state-supported common schools contemplated filing approximately 17,000 names with a view of attempting to "amend" the petitions by filing additional names within 30 days. A spokesman for the group said, however, that no such action would be taken and that the school amendment would be dropped until two years hence.

Sponsors of the proposed amendment to reduce the legal rate of interest from 10 to six per cent and of a proposed initiative act to legalize the sale of whiskey in Arkansas, did not file petitions, and did not offer any explanation for their failure to do so.

The bridal civil had its origin in the east, where many women still go veiled during the greater part of their lives and where a husband is not supposed to see his bride's face until after the ceremony of marriage.

JACKSON, Miss.—(AP)—United States Senator Vandenberg, Michigan Republican, in an address here Saturday declared the country "is honeycombed with the most gigantic system of payrollers in the history of the United States." He spoke at a gathering of Republicans celebrating the 80th anniversary of their party.

Campaigner

CARL E. BAILEY

Carl E. Bailey, of Little Rock, candidate for attorney general of Arkansas, brought his canvassing campaign to Hope Saturday, spending the day here. Mr. Bailey won his spurs as Pulaski prosecuting attorney by his handling of the case against A. B. Banks, banker, and his investigation of the Justin Matthews improvement district bond transactions.

Hitler Leaves for Alps on Vacation

Political Truce Seems Reality in Revolution-Torn Germany

Copyright Associated Press

EERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—A political truce was put into effect Saturday by the Nazi high command in a determined effort to efface all remaining traces of Germany's bloody second revolution.

Chancellor Hitler left for his summer home in the Bavarian Alps while his trusted sub-leaders are also taking their first rest since the party's purging of "plotters and traitors."

Two million Storm Troopers, temporarily stripped of their uniforms, are on a month's vacation. Their future will become Germany's foremost problem.

Vice Chancellor von Papen, when seen at his home Saturday, seemed in better spirits, as if reflecting the prevailing tendency toward a better political peace.

Despite the political truce, the propaganda ministry indicated that secret vigilance on all fronts by the secret police would continue undiminished.

The bankers it was possible to reach

ROME, Italy.—(AP)—No confirmation was available here Friday night of reports from London that Chancellor Hitler of Germany had transferred personal funds to Italian banks.

The bankers it was possible to reach, said they were unaware of such a move on the part of Hitler. But it was believed here, and elsewhere, that Italy would be a logical asylum if events in the Reich made it necessary for Hitler to leave.

President Visits Isie Puerto Rico

Roosevelt Greeted at San Juan by Cheering Crowds

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's long vacation journey brought him at sunset Friday to San Juan, capital of Puerto Rico.

For 10 hours he had been traveling across the island from Mayaguez, but the familiar smile lighted his face as his automobile paused in front of the San Juan city hall. A great crowd of Puerto Ricans cheered tumultuously. Once they broke through police lines to swarm about the president's automobile, and many managed to shake his hand before police steered them away from the car.

The ride from Mayaguez was long and at times precarious, but the president showed by his lively interest in the countryside that it was not tedious. For much of the distance rain fell and pavements through the mountains at many points were slippery.

Gov. Blanton Winship rode with the president. The hill folks came down to the highway and hundreds gathered in the villages through which the American president passed. All waved in joyous greeting and the president's hand was up almost continuously acknowledging his welcome.

Joe Thomason Is Seriously Injured in Basket Factory

Right Side Paralyzed, But Shocked Man Is Expected to Recover

RAIN SWEEPS AREA

Half an Inch of Rain Falls Here in 1½ Hours Friday Night

Joe Thomason, 24, employee of the Hope Basket Company, was seriously injured early Friday night when struck by a bolt of lightning during a severe electrical and rain storm here.

Thomason was struck by a bolt which crashed into a covered shed in which he was working about 7:30 o'clock. His right side was paralyzed from the neck down.

F. B. Ward, foreman, standing near Thomason when the lightning struck, received a severe shock but was not seriously hurt.

Will Recover

A Hope Furniture company ambulance carried Thomason to Julia Chester hospital. Physicians said Saturday that he would recover.

The casualty occurred at the height of an electrical storm accompanied by a rain which lasted an hour and a half.

Injury of Thomason was the second to occur at the plant during the day. Herbert Jamison, 30, negro, having been killed earlier when a log fell on him.

Precipitation of half an inch was recorded at the Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment station.

From reports over the county the rainfall was general, greatly benefiting fruit, vegetable and grain crops which were suffering from lack of moisture.

The Elberta peach crop will need additional rainfall to assure a big harvest, reports indicated.

Temperature Drops

The rainfall was accompanied by a sharp drop in temperature, the mercury sliding down from 95 to 68, or 17 degrees within the hour, the weather instruments at the experiment station showed.

Friday's highest temperature was 96, only 2½ degrees lower than the hottest day of the year which was recorded June 28 with a high of 99½ degrees.

Kingfish Pushes a Newspaper Tax

Long Directs 2% Thrust at All Louisiana Daily Papers

BATON ROUGE, La.—(AP)—"Kingfish" Huey P. Long just grinned Friday as the Louisiana legislature fretted and fumed and sought to chase him from the deliberative halls, only to find itself pushing through his pet measures at a breath-taking pace.

Long late Friday went before the senate finance committee and amended the 2 per cent gross receipts tax on advertising to make it apply to every daily newspaper in the state.

As passed by the house Thursday night the tax would have applied only to papers of 20,000 circulation a day and would have reached only about four of the larger newspapers in Louisiana. The bill as amended Friday would apply to all papers having a circulation of 20,000 a week.

Representative Rupert Peyton jumped up early Friday and heatedly served notice that he would invoke the rule to bar non-members from the floor of the house if Senator Long "and other notorious characters continued lobbying among members."

Hardly had he finished his tirade against "his piscatorial majesty, the crawfish," before the house took up under Senator Long's direction one of his tax reform measures, an income tax levy, and passed it.

Over in the senate, at the same time, that body was approving the "kingfish" bill to take control of the New Orleans police force away from the city-enslaved Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley. The senate also passed the administration liquor bill, which will give control of the business in the hands of the state.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Strong Bite Is Carried by Tobacco Act... Beer Agents Buy for House to Put One Over on Code... Cuba Lands Between Devil and Deep Sea... Roosevelt Plays a Little Politics.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—All hands here were so confused as to what was happening in the last few days of Congress that some of the most important developments are only now becoming clear.

Hardly anyone, for instance, seemed to realize the implications of the Kerr-Smith tobacco act. Perhaps that was because Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia, who made a terrific uproar over reorganization of the farm business and opposed the Bankhead cotton control measure, gave the bill his blessing.

The tobacco act, on examination, proves to be a lot further toward compulsory control of tobacco growers—including the many in Virginia—than the Bankhead law does in the case of cotton farmers.

Every cotton farmer will get a certificate for a certain quota of cotton. Anything he sells in excess of that quota is subject to a presumably prohibitive tax. He isn't compelled to co-operate.

But the tobacco raiser must now sign a contract if he wishes to avoid a penalty tax on his entire crop. If he doesn't sign, he doesn't get the allotment certificate which exempts him from tax on his quota. Thus he is driven into a contract with AAA.

AAA men who will administer the act say it will be more amenable than the Bankhead law. Congress, including Senator Byrd—passed it at the behest of a vast majority of tobacco growers.

Have One on the Beer Man! Price fixing isn't working so well in the beer business, because brewers know so many ways of getting around their code provision for price posting.

A brewer can't grant a discount to a saloonkeeper or other retailer. But he can order his collectors to buy drinks for the house whenever they call. One, two drinks or more—depending on how many customers are there. The effect is a discount on the beer and an "unfair trade practice."

Devil and Deep Sea The first reciprocity treaty under the new tariff act was signed with Cuba, probably within the next 40 days. The administration would like to bolster up the weak Mendieta government at Havana and can't think of any better way just now than to stimulate trade between the two countries.

In any event, it is resigned to the likelihood of another Cuban revolution before effects of the treaty are felt.

President Mendieta and his advisers have a terrible time deciding when the abrogation of the Platt amendment—which gave us special rights of intervention—should be signed. They lay awake nights wondering whether a favorable popular reaction to it would be greater than the value of the deterrent effect of the amendment on would-be revolutionists.

They held off signing until they felt their political position was strong enough to withstand attack. Apparently they were not as strong as they thought they were.

The one big thing Cuba seeks in the tariff treaty is a further cut in the duty on her sugar. There's some strong support for that in the administration here. But hardly strong enough to get it into the agreement.

Playing Some Politics White House disclaimers of political angles in speeches Roosevelt plans as he crosses the country on returning from Hawaii haven't convinced insiders that he won't come very close to—ahh maybe right up to—endorsement of Senator Bob LaFollette's Progressive candidacy in Wisconsin.

One strong indication of the president's sympathy with independents up for re-election is the fact that he has sent private word asking Senator Henrik Shipstead, Farmer-Laborite, to ride on the train with him when he crosses Minnesota.

That will help Shipstead, who, like LaFollette, has a Democratic opponent—Congressman Einar Holmlund.

The last mail run from coast to coast, flown by the Army Air Corps was the fastest ever made with mail. Although six stops were made, the mail came through in 13 hours and 53 minutes.

On a recent Sunday, more than 1000 persons took sightseeing trips over Detroit, setting a record for this type of flying for all time, except during the aircraft shows.

Watch Sleeping Comfort of Children in Summer—Let Rooms Cool Before They're Put to Bed

"What can we do about daylight-saving time and bed time? They just don't click at all."

It is every mother's plaint these days, especially when a hot wave hits us and upstairs bedrooms are like furnaces.

So what? Is little Carrie to smother in her crib from six o'clock on? The sun at six in these parts is still more than three hours from its own bedtime. Is William to climb in at seven and yell for drinks until at least until his mother is at her wits' end dragging up and down and telling him he must go to sleep?

I happen to be one who cannot sleep when I am too hot. Heat makes people nervous and I am one. Therefore I know how children feel who toss for two or three hours on a hot evening before sleep rescues them.

Postponing Bedtime Naturally then, I think it permissible to postpone bedtime a bit during the long heated days of midsummer.

Of course, it all depends. If you live in a suburb that cools off in the evening, or in the country where it gets real chilly, it makes a difference. The children's bedtime need make little concession to summer when conditions are right, or even to daylight-saving time which lengthens the day still more. Always and always children have had to "go to sleep by day in summer" as the little poem says.

It is the combination of too great heat and light that permits some change in regimen, I think.

Not long ago I was in a cool living-room visiting some young parents in the family.

Upstairs the baby was crying, and her big three-year-old brother was crying, too. It was very hot up there.

Without more ado I picked up the baby, carried her downstairs, spread some cool papers on the living room floor and laid her there. Then I went through a like "hibernus corpus" with the boy. This time I dragged down two sheets and a pillow, spreading these in the cool dark dining-room. Then I folded the delightful young Ma-Grew away.

Both went contentedly to sleep, later to be carried upstairs when night breezes had cooled off their rooms to a decent temperature.

This is not intended to set a precedent. I know not where you live, your particular climate, or the lie of your house. Drafts, doors, windows, are best understood by the individual mother. Also the age and condition of her own children.

Use Judgment But try to figure it all out and do what seems safe and sensible at the moment. Routine once broken is hard to re-establish, but when it comes to actual misery, some concessions do have to be made. In summer we have to summon every good ounce of judgment we possess to keep children comfortable and well.

Beds should be flat and under sheets should be drawn tight. Wrinkles only make it hotter. On hot nights pull beds away from the wall to allow for a circulation of air.

I don't advise floors, although I saw fit to use them on this one occasion. But it all goes to show that signs fail in voting hot weather. Do what seems best.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Soap and Water Sufficient to Keep Hair Well-Groomed

The fastidious woman is well aware that a beautiful coiffure is one of her most valuable assets.

First of all, she makes sure that her hair is in a healthy condition. She shampoos often enough to keep it soft and shiny and the pores of the scalp free from dust and other impurities.

There's nothing quite as nice as a regular old-fashioned soap and water shampoo but if for some reason, it's not always convenient to have one, invest in a dry shampoo preparation and use it between times. Remember about brushing. And try to hold the brush lightly in your hand so that the brush will vibrate when you pull it through your hair instead of sweeping through and ruining your finger wave. Get a really good hair brush. There's a new one on the market today and it has bristles of uneven lengths and is as light as a comb. It's good for the hair and not at all tiring to use.

If you have oily hair, a too dry scalp or a bit of dandruff, get a reliable tonic that will correct your particular condition. And apply the tonic according to directions on the bottle.

Next in importance to the health of hair is the manner in which it is worn. Plan a becoming coiffure and then learn to keep each hair in place. Use a bit of pomade after you've had a shampoo and get some invisible hair pins to fasten the curls across the back of your neck.

The War Department recently announced a three-year program calling for expenditure of $30,000,000 for 1000 planes.

The gross public debt of the United States has reached 27-billion dollars. It might as well be that as $27 if it isn't paid.

SOPHIE KERR'S SUPERB LOVE STORY "STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

By Sophie Kerr

BEGIN HERE TODAY JANE TERRY comes to New York determined to show her home town and especially AMY JACKSON that she can make a success of her life. Amy had been her best friend until HOWARD JACKSON broke the engagement Jane forced on him and married Amy. Unable to bear the sight of Amy's happiness, Jane obtains a job in a New York real estate office.

Jane is clever and soon is making an excellent salary. She has an affair with ROGER THORPE, a business acquaintance who is married. Later she finds him and when he offers to hear the expense of their child she dismisses him contemptuously.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XV No. Jane reassured herself, she didn't regret Thorpe. "I can get through by myself better than having him whining about," she thought angrily. "Afraid that he'll be found out and disgraced!"

She tried to think of someone she could tell. There was Miss Jardine, but she wouldn't be able to bear Miss Jardine's questions and her possible satisfaction that Jane was in such distress. Miss Jardine had disappeared of Jane's apartment. She had, Jane was sure, been a thoughtless envious of Jane's quick success. As an aid in trouble Miss Jardine would not do.

And there were no girls or women in the Kandel organization to whom Jane could turn. They'd talk. They'd be sure to find out about Thorpe and the scandal would go through the office like rot in wood.

The only person in the office who seemed at all possible was Kandel himself. Jane knew that he, rough, bullying, powerful, would understand. She could be blunt and straight with him, and he with her. But there again, if she talked to Kandel, Thorpe would be implicated. And whatever happened Jane meant to keep silence about Thorpe. It was not so much to protect him as to protect herself for the future. She had learned the hard lesson that every person let into a secret increases its sharers by ten.

Of course, there was Aunt Rosa. "But I'll walk straight into Hades before I tell her," Jane said aloud. "She'd go off her head and she'd drive me crazy, too. The preaching I'd have to stand, and the way she'd carry on! Aunt Rosa's out."

Thinking of Aunt Rosa brought back Marburg, its quiet streets and quiet shaded houses. And then, suddenly her dream came back, two girls walking under the elm trees as in a high green tunnel, two girls in light dresses, laughing together—why, of course—Amy! Amy would stand by, Amy would not preach, Amy would hold her tongue.

She could trust and depend on Amy as on no other person in the world. There was relief to the very thought of her. Jane's quick advantage-seeking mind added the weight of Amy's promise—Amy had said that she was always her friend, that she would do anything!

Jane brushed aside as nothing the cruel stabbings things she had said and written to Amy. They had no bar to her appeal.

ALL the same, it was exciting to think of seeing Jane again, of seeing where and how she lived, and perhaps being friends once more. Maybe Jane had repented the way she had behaved about Howard and her wild accusations against both him and Amy, but that seemed unlikely Jane.

She wished the interview over. The real reason for it she never once suspected. With her eyes still dazzled from the outside glare she walked hesitantly into the shadowy room of Jane's apartment, and a shadowy, misshapen figure came hesitantly to meet her.

"Is Miss Terry—" began Amy. And Jane's voice, shrill, trembling: "Amy—Amy!"

Then Amy knew why she had sent for her. She was so struck with horror and amazement that she could not speak, but she held out her hands and the two women clung together in silence, which presently broke into a chaotic murmuring half-speech, half-incoherent wordless exclamation.

"I knew—I knew you'd come. There was nobody but you." "Jane—oh poor Jane!"

"Amy—Amy! I'm so afraid—it's all so dreadful!" "But Jane—tell me—" And Jane told. Not very much, not very clearly, but enough for Amy to understand the folly, the danger, the pity of what she had done. Amy understood something more—that for once Jane was not acting, not shamming. For once Jane was honest with herself and her audience.

"If you'll only stay with me, Amy. That's what I mind, being so utterly alone. If I only felt well I'd get through it by myself, but I feel so strange. Sometimes I think I might die here without a soul around. You will stay with me, won't you? You won't leave me?"

Atlanta Outhits Hope, Wins 8 to 5

V. Glass Pitches Visitors to Victory—Playoff Being Arranged

The Atlanta Rabbits outhit the Storks Friday afternoon to take an 8 to 5 decision at Fair Park.

V. Glass, who hurled the Atlanta club to victory in a twin bill Tuesday afternoon against the Tirenens, enabling the Rabbits to tie the Storks for the first-half pennant race, hung up another victory Friday.

Grice was an mound for Hope but was unable to silence the big bats of the Atlanta team.

A three-game play-off series between Atlanta and Hope for the first-half championship will be staged the third week in July, but no definite dates were fixed Friday.

One game will be played here, another at Atlanta, and if necessary, a third game to decide the title will be played at Texarkana.

From the radio description of the Beer-Camera fight it would seem as though the sponsoring tire company won every round.

Your Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

SEE THAT ICE CREAM MEETS THE HEALTH LAWS

Ice cream is one of the best foods you can have in the summer. Yet it ranks second to milk among our dairy products as a cause of epidemics.

To safeguard you against infection from this source and enable you to enjoy this excellent food, health departments everywhere have set up standards of safety for ice cream. These standards prevent the sale of misbranded products and make certain that ice cream improperly prepared will not cause epidemic diseases.

That there is great danger to your health from this source is shown by the fact that, from 1909 to 1927, the United States Public Health Service reported 32 epidemics believed to have been caused by contaminated ice cream.

Ingredients of ice cream include cream, milk, condensed milk, skimmed milk, and similar substances. All of these should be of known quality as to nature and number of bacteria that they contain. Only products that are of very low bacterial count should be permitted in making ice cream.

All equipment used in the manufacture of ice cream, including cans, pipes pasteurizing apparatus, and so on, should be thoroughly sterilized and washed before being used. After the ice cream has been made and pasteurized, it is still possible for germs to get into it.

Usually nuts, fruits, colors and flavoring materials are added after the product has been mixed and pasteurized. It is necessary to be certain that such added ingredients are free from large numbers of germs.

The persons who handle the ice cream should be cautioned as to the danger of contaminating this food. If they have sore throats or colds, or if their hands are likely to be contaminated with bacteria in any way they should be relieved temporarily from work.

All examination, usually given to food handlers must be given to those who make and handle ice cream. Clean garments should be especially reserved to working hours.

It is well known that germs can live a long time even under very cold conditions, so that keeping ice cream in a frozen condition for any length of time is no guarantee that it will be safe from the point of view of dangerous germs.

In the large cities there usually are regulations which control manufacture and distribution of ice cream. Nowadays most ice cream is distributed in sealed packages rather than in bulk. You should make certain that the sealed package has not been tampered with in any way before it reaches you.

A woman in Maryland charges that her husband beat her 1435 times. It does take considerable persuasion to get an idea into people's heads these days.

There has been a reduction of 43 per cent in automobile theft losses in New Jersey in the three years since the new bill of sale law has been in effect.

Eternal Values
Whatever else be lost among the years
God still abides, and love remains the same,
And bravery glimmers through men's tears.
And truth will keep its true and upright name.
As long as life lasts there will ever be,
Kindness and justice and high loyalty.
In a bewildered world these things will hold
The human heart from darkness and despair.
Old as the sun and the moon and stars are old,
Remaining constant, they are ever there,
Lodestars for men to steer their courses by.
The eternal things of life never die.

Two Hope Students at Chi Art Academy

Miss Evelyn Johnson and Mrs. W. J. Foster Jr., of Hope, are taking a number of professional art courses this summer at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts where they enrolled July 2 for the special eight weeks summer school. They will study in the school's 12th floor studios overlooking Lake Michigan and the Century of Progress grounds, at 18 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, their instructors being various professional artists who are foremost in their individual art fields.

The summer art courses have been planned so the students may participate directly in the Century of Progress Exposition. Weekly, faculty-conducted tours of the Fair for ideas and idea development will be a part of all classes, and projects directly related to the Fair will be a portion of Miss Johnson's and Mrs. Foster's summer study. Such contacts with the most timely in design, color, and form, as well as with the great international exhibits will be of extraordinary value in their future creative work.

Holy Land Movies to Be Shown Here

Rev. F. A. Forrest at Barham Revival Meeting Monday and Tuesday

The Rev. F. A. Forrest, pastor of First Presbyterian church of Tucson, Ariz., and president of Toccoa Falls Bible Institute, an independent Full Gospel Bible school of the same city, will be with the Barham Evangelistic Party in the Hope Skating Rink on Monday and Tuesday nights, July 9 and 10.

Dr. Forrest, who has been president of the Toccoa Falls Bible Institute for about 20 years, has recently made a tour of the Holy Land and several mission fields, and will give motion pictures and lectures both nights on the Holy Land. Every minute will be packed with drama and filled with something interesting.

This feature of the revival is an attraction which will probably not come to this city the size of Hope once in a decade.

There will be no charge.

1 1/2 Million Let on State's Hospital

Dallas Contractor Given Job of Finishing Benton Structure

LITTLE ROCK.—Contracts, totaling $1,476,000, for completion of the farm colony unit of the new state hospital near Benton were awarded by the State Construction Commission Friday, subject to approval by the Public Works Administration, from which the state obtained a loan and grant of $1,709,000 to complete the institution.

The general construction contract was awarded to Nathan Wohlfeld, Dallas, Texas, on his low bid of $833,807, which was approximately $6,000 below the next lowest bid, submitted by T. L. James & Co. and William Peterson of Little Rock.

The general contract includes eight dormitories, two cafeterias and kitchens, dairy barns, farm buildings, sheds, etc. The successful bidder agreed to complete the construction in 455 calendar days.

The formality of reading the advertisement for bids on $1,327,000 worth of state construction bonds was carried out at the board meeting, although no bids had been received. A contract previously had been made with PWA officials whereby the PWA would buy 4 per cent bonds at par, if no private bids were received.

Tom Davis, secretary of the board, received a telegram from PWA officials in Washington saying the government is ready to advance money on the bonds in accordance with the agreement. The bond sale will be supplemented by a direct grant of $442,000, representing 30 per cent of the amount of state funds expended on the project.

movement of cars from an oil company plant. Bullies were fired over the heads of the Fordland strikers.

President Roosevelt's Labor Disputes Board, which for days had worked in vain toward getting all sides together voluntarily for a settlement, decided Friday night to use its authority under the newly enacted congressional resolution governing employment controversies.

The board, invoking for the first time the provision of the new law, announced it would hold public hearings beginning here Monday to determine issues, facts and practices in the controversy. It has the power to subpoena witnesses and records, and to act as arbitrator upon request.

And the story simply tells how, in the sunset of his life, he looks back on his past, on his youth, his long life of service, his wife, who whittled his only son died half a century ago; on the war and the boys he knew who were killed in it; and on the long procession of boys, decade after decade, who have drifted into his life and then drifted out again, taking something with them and also leaving something exceedingly precious.

And so at last, he dies. And a friend by his bed remarks it is a pity that the old gentleman never had any children. Dying, he hears, rouses himself, chuckling, to protest— "Oh yes, I have thousands of them... all boys."

It is a singularly beautiful, tender and moving story.

Chicken Supper Is Held at Hunt's Lake

An enjoyable social gathering was held by a number of Palmos citizens who invited themselves to a chicken supper and swimming party at Hunt's lake near Palmos the night of June 26. This was the first gathering of this kind for the season and all present declared it a success.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Rider and family, Mr. and Mrs. Pink W. Taylor and family, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Rider and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Drake and family, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Rider and family, Mrs. C. P. Jones and son Clinton, with a number of the younger set.

The topic of the evening seemed to be the coming event of the season when the entire citizenship of the community will come together in the annual event which will be July 26, when everyone is invited to enjoy a picnic and social gathering. The candidates are all invited on that day.

system to prevent such rises.

"As a measure of protection to the smaller business and industrial man, the federal government would keep a strict watch to prevent any monopolistic tendencies."

For some months the view has been held by New Yorkers prominent in industry and finance—and friendly in the main to the aims of the Roosevelt administration—that the federal government should unsholder the task of governing industry under the NRA.

Some of these men also have felt that unemployment insurance—one of the points in the president's program of social reform for the next congress—should be a part of any self-governing set-up for industry. They look on such insurance as a duty on industry. It was not learned, however, whether such a step was contemplated in the supplanting of the NRA.
